Anne's message resonates with organizations that are:

- 🕒 Navigating change, complexity or uncertainty and looking for a more intentional way forward.
- 🕒 Seeking fresh perspective rather than quick answers or one-size-fits-all solutions.
- 🕒 Growing into a new season of leadership that requires different ways of thinking, communicating and leading.

What I took away [from Anne] was asking questions around some of my own fears and perspectives on how I was seeing things. We don't always have clear vision. For me, Anne gave me that clearer vision to see things with new eyes.

Signature keynote

Harnessing Your Strategic Advantage Through Introspection

In today's world, we're rewarded for moving faster, answering quicker and doing more. But the greatest breakthroughs rarely come from doing more. They come from seeing more.

In this thought-provoking keynote, Anne invites audiences to discover the strategic advantage of introspection. When we pause long enough to notice the assumptions, habits and patterns quietly shaping our decisions, we uncover new possibilities for leadership, relationships and the way we move through the world. We stop reacting to life and begin responding with greater clarity, intention and purpose.

Personally, participants will

- Recognize the hidden assumptions and habitual patterns shaping decisions
- Learn to pause with intention instead of reacting out of habit
- Ask better questions that lead to greater insight, self-agency and purposeful action
- See themselves as the source of their impact and use their strengths with intention

Professionally, they'll be prepared to

- Lead with greater intention through change and uncertainty
- Experience more impactful relationships using introspection as a strategic tool
- Execute greater discernment in decision making and goal setting
- Inspire a culture where people see more, so they can be more

Take the conversation deeper

Anne's keynote is often the beginning of a larger conversation. In addition to her signature keynote, organizations looking to deepen their experience can continue their growth through the following:

Keyshop: Part keynote. Part workshop. A facilitated experience that combines Anne's core ideas with reflection, conversation, and practical application.

Workshop: An interactive experience that allows participants to explore Anne's concepts in greater depth while applying them directly to their work, leadership and organizational challenges.

Anne has had major impacts on my life. Some of the things I've learned from her I've taken to my friends, my family, my colleagues and my children. Every time I know Anne's speaking, even my wife is in the front row with me, ready to learn. I know we're always going to leave those sessions being better people and with greater impact.
